The shingles of other woods to be treated are immersed for a sufficient time in the hot creosote, and then in the cold. Full details of the operation are given to applicants for information by the Forest Service at Washington.

Shingles are one of the most important lumber products in this country. Last year nearly twelve billions were made. Even this enormous number was spite of the reports to the contrary. a heavy falling off from the total of the year before. It is a significant fact that the chief source of shingle supply is now the forests of the far northwest, from which shingles are brought even to New York. The eastern sources of supply are not able to meet the eastern demand. It is therefore fortunate that shingles are so easily given a preservative treatment by which their life is lengthened.

Many handsome residences in all parts of the country have their sides and gables covered with shingles. This areaitectural use often calls for staining or painting in harmonious colors. Such coloring is less frequently seen on roofs, where it does not last long, because rain washes it off.
